Young ladies with a fondness for infantile admirers should be warned by an episode at a seaside resort reeently, says a writer In Lippineott's Magazine for July. An engaging maseuline of seven years became on exceedingly good terms with the belie of their particular hotel, a girl about twenty years his senior. One day the charmer asked the swain to go bathing, and after the bath, as they returned to their bathhouses, the small man suggested a race, to see who could dress first, and in a short time a vouthful voice called:

"Ethel, oh Miss Ethel, I've got my stockings on."

rones were Mesdames Ben Herndon, "Yes, Robbie so have I," answered Banks Hudson and Louis Landram. Miss Ethel. Miss Emma Crawford, of Junetion After a short pause the irrepressl-Dity, is the guest of Miss Stella ble again said: "Miss Ethel, I've got my shoes on." Again eame the answer: "Yes, dear so have 1." Again a pause-then a triumphant voice shrilly proclaimed: "Miss Ethel, I've got my pants on." The answering silence was oppres sive.

Good Manners

Depend much upon good health. If the women of to-day lose in so comparison with the women of Washington's day in the matter of fine manners, it may be in no small part due to the fact that most women suffer from womanly diseases. It is very hard to be polite and courteous, snave of manner and smooth of speech, when pain is thrusting its darts into the body. into the body.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures the womanly diseases which make women nervous and irritable. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness. It cures headache, backache, nervousness, sleeplessness and other ills which are the result of womanly disease.

TWO EXAMPLES.

The Influence Exerted by the Church

A young girl in whose home there had been no religious influence, al-though the parents were honest and intelligent people, went to teach in an out-of-the-way country neighborhood. It was her first school. She was alone covered that that was not the greatest deprivation she was forced to suffer. She found that her patrons were illiterate, rough and quarrelsome. 'They were in constant litigation; feuds existwere in constant litigation; feuds existed between families which gave rise to all manner of violence; cattle were maimed, fences were torn down that the crops might be destroyed by the animals that ran at large. The cross-roads grocery was the private rendezvons. Here the men assembled to drink, smoke, and play eards. There was no church within some miles, and Sunday was devoted to visiting amongst the better families and to horse racing and fox hunting amongst the worst. The children who were enrolled as pupils in the school showed all the lack of proper training and the effects of the evil with which they were constantly brought in contact. They were not only evil with which they were constantly brought in contact. They were not only ignorant, but they had no desire to learn. Most of them held education in unconcealed contempt. With this, they were profane, disobedient, nursing a sullen envy and hatred for those whom they could not help perceiving were their superiors. They had no comprehension of respect or subordina-tion. The life of the young teacher was almost unendurable, but she had pluck and perseverence and she would not be driven away. She taught the term to its close. But every penny of her salary had been earned many times over. She would not have com-plained of this, could she have felt that she sought to impart by precept and speaking the thrift and industry of their

This American Family Could Think of Nothing Save the "Tub" Which Proves Undoing.

The two pretty American girls had | 0 met two delightful Englishmen on the way across, says a writer in Lippincot's, and had given a cordial invitation, warmly seconded by their moth-Sir Charles and his friend to visit them at their country home. One day a message came saying the two men would arrive that afterno excitement, and many plans of entertainment for their guests were suggested and abandoned It was finally decided that as Englishmen are no-toriously fond of a "tub," and their guests were coming directly from the train they should first be invited to take a bath. After that the hostess would rely on the suspiration of the moment. The young men arrived promptly, and after some demurring were hurried off to the bathroom. about an hour they emerged and went immediately to their hostess, saying, We are sorry to leave so soon, but we only came to make a call, and our train leaves in 15 minutes.

ing to all persons not to trespass upon our lands for any purpose whatever,

Many people, especially ladies, are annoyed with dry, scaly skin, black-heads, pimples and blotches. Such ailments are generally treated with cold cream, face lotions, witch hazel preparations, etc., which only afford temporary relief, if any. The trouble exists in the inactivity of the pores of the skin. If the pores are healthy and perform their duties properly the complexion will be good, unless the person is suffering from some chronic blood trouble.
